NEMS Linda Yu Bien Volunteer Program

North East Medical Services (NEMS) is looking for college students who are interested in pursuing a health-related career for our Linda Yu Bien Volunteer Program. The goal of the program is to expose students to the dynamic environment of a community health center so that they can better understand how health care is delivered to an underserved population.

DATES

This is a volunteer program that will begin June 2026. The volunteer must be able to work continuously through the summer, completing a total of 240 hours. Schedules are to be determined with the Health Education Manager.

LOCATION

The Linda Yu Bien Volunteer Program is located at our NEMS Chinatown Clinic on 1520 Stockton Street in San Francisco, California. Depending on the activity, volunteers may be asked to attend other NEMS clinic sites.

 Volunteers may receive a stipend of $2,500 after they have successfully completed the program.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

Volunteers will receive trainings from the NEMS Health Education Department on how to improve communication skills in a health care setting and learn how to deliver culturally competent health education messages.

Primary responsibilities include:

- Counseling pediatric and adult patients on healthy lifestyle behaviors
- Developing health education materials in English and Chinese or Spanish
- Working with community partners in regards to health education talks, health fairs, and outreach events and activities

Candidates should exhibit a strong interest in working with the underserved Asian and/or Latinx population, have basic knowledge of Asian and/or Latinx health issues, and have strong communication/presentation skills.

Volunteers will be expected to engage with patients in Cantonese, Mandarin, or Spanish. Fluency in one of these languages is required; fluency in multiple of these languages is preferred. Volunteers will have the opportunity to work directly with patients and NEMS' health care team.

Submit your application online by completing our Volunteer Application Form: bit.ly/nems-volunteer. You will receive a confirmation email once your application has been successfully submitted. Questions? Contact us at nems.volunteers@nems.org.

Application Deadline: March 31, 2026
